Mission

The Jonathan Speirs Scholarship Fund is a UK registered charity that provides support to students of architecture who wish to enter the architectural lighting design profession. It has been set up at the behest of the late Jonathan Speirs to allow 'A Student of Architecture to investigate the study of Architectural Lighting Design'. We are entirely funded by donations, particularly from the lighting, architecture, and engineering communities. We urgently need your support. Please give generously.

The Jonathan Speirs Scholarship Fund minimises administrative costs to maximize the value of contributions.

About Jonathan

Dr. Jonathan Speirs (1958-2012)

D.Sc Dip. Arch B.Sc(Hons) RIBA FRIAS PLDA FRSA
Hon.IALD Hon.FSLL

Jonathan Speirs was one of the world's leading architectural lighting designers. He is widely acknowledged as not only having been a pioneer of the profession of architectural lighting design in the UK but also a considerable influence on the work of a generation of lighting designers across the world. He was originally trained and educated as an architect before moving into the field of architectural lighting where he developed both his creative and technical skills through experience whilst leaning on his formal professional training. It was Jonathan's wish that other architects might realise the possibility to move from architecture into lighting design as he did. He recognised that so doing not only required passion and hard work but also represented a substantial financial risk by moving from a formal vocational training into a new and expanding profession.
